

Raymond and Stoffel “top of the line” according to Sargento Foods Inc.

Sliced, shredded, chunk or string – anyway you like your cheese, Sargento Foods in Plymouth, Wisconsin, has it!

Storing and shipping all that cheese is a 24/7/365 concern for Sargento Maintenance Mechanic Rob Schmitt. He relies on a mixed lift equipment fleet of approximately 50 units.

“We have 35 reach trucks, four walkies and some Raymond riders, and we keep them all busy around the clock,” Rob comments.

According to Rob, Stoffel Equipment’s familiarity with Sargento’s lift fleet results in a significant pay off in time and budget.

“When I call Stoffel for service, my rep knows our equipment, and we can cut through a lot of red tape. They respond promptly with the right solution, and I don’t have to spend my time identifying the equipment or explaining the issues,” Rob noted. “Our drivers and I consider Raymond top of the line, and Stoffel’s dealer support is a big part of that.”

“We’ve been doing business with Stoffel Equipment for 30 years, and I consider them one of the finest companies I’ve ever worked with.”
